Great Transcontinental Airplane Flight From New York to Nome Started Noon Today

All Wrangell Will Be at Landing Field When Airplane Squadron Arrives. Mayor Grant Will Declare Holiday Upon Receipt of Cable Advices Announcing Day and Hour Expected Here

FLYING FIELD, MINNEOLA, NEW YORK—Special—Four army airplanes took off at noon today in an attempted flight to Nome, Alaska, and return, under the direction of the War Department.

The announced purpose of the 4,500 mile flight is to demonstrate the practicability of commercial air lines in Alaska and department officials expect the voyage to result in the establishment of aerial mail routes in Alaska. Photographs of hitherto inaccessible portions of the territory traversed will be taken for engineering purposes.

The route laid out will take the planes across the States on the northern border until North Dakota is reached when they will cut across Canada.

Everything is in readiness at the landing field on Segeif island. Under the supervision of Sergt. McLaughlin a board walk has been built from the beach to the field. Saturday afternoon a party composed of Sergt. McLaughlin, Mayor J. G. Grant, Leo McCormack and F. E. Bronson visited the field, making the trip on the Hazel B No. 3. They took 35 drums of gasoline, and other supplies.

On Tuesday Sergt. McLaughlin took a crew of ten men to the landing field and spent the day giving the field the finishing touches.

He will make another trip to the field the day before the aviators are due to arrive and will mark the field with a cross made of white cheesecloth.

Captain S. C. Barrington will have the Hazel B No. 3, Hazel B No. 4, and a scow in commission to convey passengers to Segeif island to witness the landing of the airplanes. A nominal fare will be charged for the round trip.

Capt. H. A. LeRoyer of the Canadian Air Board accompanied Capt. Howard T. Douglas, as far as Dawson. He was aboard the Princess Alice south bound last week. While the vessel was in port he furnished Sergt. W. W. McLaughlin with a copy of instructions he had issued to authorities at each landing place in Canada. The same instructions should of course be followed at all landing places, whether on U. S. or Canadian soil.

It is urgently requested that all persons stay off the field. Spectators can see the landing just as advantageously from the outer edges of the field.

In case of an accident at the time of landing the spectators must not make a rush to the scene. A doctor and five or six persons can do all that is necessary. In case of fire use fire extinguishers or fresh earth.

Fifteen stops will be made between the starting place and Nome, namely: Erie, Pa.; Grand Rapids, Mich.; Winona, Minn.; Fargo, N. D.; Portal, N. D.; Saskatoon, Saskatchewan; Edmonton, Alta.; Jasper House, Alta.; Prince George, B. C.; Hazelton, B. C.; Wrangell, Alaska; Whitehorse, Y. T.; Dawson, Y. T.; Fairbanks, Alaska, and Ruby, Alaska. The round trip will cover between 9,000 and 10,000 miles.

There necessarily will be several places where all night stops will be made, and Wrangell may be one of these points.

It is expected that telegraphic advices of the location of the squadron of aeroplanes at all times during the flight will be given out at short intervals.

The flight will be in charge of Capt. St. Clair Streett, of the United States Air Force. The other aviators who will participate are Lieut. Clifford C. Nutt, Lieut. Eric H. Nelson, Lieut. C. H. Crumrine, Lieut. Ross C. Kirkpatrick, Sergt. Edmund Henriquez, Sergt. Albert T. Viera and Master Engineer Joseph W. English.

The Expedition is being conducted by the American war department, which has the friendly assistance of the Dominion government in that portion of the flight through Canada.

Four large army aeroplanes of the D. H. 4 B's type will be used, traveling in company, and will be in charge of the U. S. army aviators. The expedition will start from the American aviation field at Mineola, near New York city. These machines will not be as large as those used by the U. S. in crossing the Atlantic, but are a large type designed for practicable purposes, with a special feature of a gasoline tank with 100 gallons extra capacity. Each machine will carry two men. The machines differ from those used in the trans-Atlantic flight in that these are not designed for such long freak jumps, but more for practical purposes, and the element of doubt in this flight is practically eliminated, whereas, it was a long shot in the Atlantic flight whether the fliers would make it or not.

The latest issue of the Whitehorse Star contains the following:

The great international transcontinental aeroplane flight that will start at Mineola, N. Y., on July 15 and end when the 10,000 mile journey from that place to Nome and return has been accomplished. The same route will be traveled both coming and going, and there will not be a minute of the entire time consumed in the flight when there will not be millions of eyes throughout the world concentrated upon and tracing out on the map of this great northland the line of travel followed by the aviators, and millions of people speculating as to the time of their probable arrival and departure from each of the points at which they are announced to stop.

This event will prove of the SIGNAL

Blowing of Mill Whistle and Ringing of Bells Will Proclaim in Advance the Coming of Airplane Squadron.

As it is impossible to know the exact time of the arrival of the planes, it has been arranged to blow the mill whistle, ring the bells and otherwise make a noise to show that it is time to put out the cat, grab the baby and lunch basket and hurry to Grant's float where the boats will be in readiness.

As there are no restaurants on Segeif Islands, it would be wise for those making the trip to take a lunch basket along.

WOMAN MURDERED

SEATTLE.—Mrs. E. E. Cash of Ashland, Oregon, four times married was found dead in the Barker hotel this morning, apparently the victim of murder. The police are looking for E. E. Jacobs with whom she was registered as his wife. Mrs. Cash has three daughters in San Francisco.

WILL CONFER WITH FOCH

SPAD.—Field Marshal Wilson of Great Britain, who was summoned here Tuesday by the Supreme Allied Council, after the German delegates engaged in conference in this city had rejected the Allied solution of the coal delivery problem, is expected to arrive here tonight to confer immediately with General Foch.

utmost benefit to Alaska and the Yukon, for it will be the first step in a campaign of advertising such as has never before been dreamed of. And advertising is what we need. We have the undeveloped resources, but it is necessary that we convince the skeptical capitalists who are now holding aloof, that in the immense domain there are today greater opportunities for profitable mining investments than anywhere else in the world.

From the time the aeroplanes leave Wrangell until they arrive here and pass on toward Dawson, Whitehorse will be a place of absorbing interest to countless human beings, and the memory of its location will remain long after the story of the aerial flight that brought it into being has been relegated to the past, unless, as seems quite probable, a permanent aeroplane route be established on the course followed as now laid out, in which latter event the advertising would be continuous and far more advantageous to Yukon and our neighbor on the south than the short campaign above outlined, although the benefits that we are likely to derive from that will doubtless eventually prove of inestimable value.

According to late press advices there will be a regular aerial passenger and mail service established early next month between Seattle, Cordova, interior Alaska points and Nome. Now whether we accept this statement with reservations or as being absolutely true, it is impossible to ignore what seems to be as certain of accomplishment in the near future as that the sun will rise tomorrow, and that is that for passenger traffic and the rapid transportation of first class mail and express the airship will be the mode of conveyance.

"Alaska Has the Making of A Rich and Noble State" Says Rabbi Stephen S. Wise

Noted Churchman Declares That Uncle Sam's Northern Dependency Should Not Be Dealt With as an Administrative Problem, and Pledges Himself to Work for the Unlocking of Alaska's Resources.

I shall do everything I can within and without Washington to point out the tragedy of a great empire left largely if not wholly undeveloped.

Alaska has by reason of its unparalleled resources the making of a rich and noble state. It is the business of the American people and government to remember that Alaska is not an island of the distant seas inhabited by an inferior people, but a part of the United States ready for development into one of the valuable and strong regions of our common nation the moment Alaska ceases to be dealt with as an administrative problem and comes to be regarded as one of the potentially enriching factors of American life.

Osborn Children to Enter Mooseheart

Mrs. J. W. Pritchett this week received a letter from Mrs. John Nichols of Mooseheart, Ill., in which she stated that the Mooseheart Board of Governors had passed favorably on the application of the Wrangell Moose Lodge for the admission of the Osborn children into the Mooseheart institution. The local Moose lodge has not yet been officially notified of the action of the Board of Governors.

The Ketchikan Chronicle complains that profiteers exist in the city. It says that after years of reasonable rentals landlords are now charging $15 a month for shacks which formerly rented for $6; and that a $25 shack is bringing in $45.

Destroyer in Port

The U. S. S. Moody, Capt. Olson in command, arrived in port at 6 p.m. yesterday and remained here until 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The Moody is one of the six destroyers that came north with Secretary of Interior Payne, Secretary of Navy Daniels and Admiral Rodman.

Capt. Olson stated that the voyage to Alaska is more or less in the nature of a junketing trip after having operated pretty strenuously for almost a year in the vicinity of San Diego. The Moody is 314 in length, has 12 torpedo tubes and carries four 4-inch guns and one anti aircraft.

The other five destroyers now in Alaskan waters are: Sinclair, McCawley, Meyer, Henshaw, Rathburn.

The Idado will come north to Anchorage and take the high officials back to the States.

Martin Bugge, R. Howard and J. H. Rodgers, returned Friday from a trip up the Iskut river to investigate a mining prospect. They gave out no information other than that they found considerable snow. The party left Saturday for Ketchikan which is their home.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and family were passengers aboard the Jefferson Tuesday afternoon. Rabbi Wise is one of the most noted churchmen of America. He is the founder and rabbi of the Free Synagogue of New York and is a national figure by his prominence in civic and philanthropic activities as well as his literary attainments.

The Rabbi is a man of wonderful personality and is intensely interesting to meet. He is a personal friend of Woodrow Wilson and in speaking of the president said:

"President Wilson is one of the great figures of American history, misunderstood and misprized for a time but certain to take his place with the immortal makers of America."

The Sentinel reporter asked Rabbi Wise for his opinion concerning Alaska. His few but expressive words appear at the head of this column.

While the vessel was in port Rabbi Wise and family were shown the various places of interest in Wrangell by Mr. F. E. Bronson and family. Rabbi Wise is a friend of Mr. Bronson's brother-in-law, the Rev. Dr. Samuel McChord Crothers of Cambridge, Mass., with whom he has exchanged pulpits.

F. E. Gingrass returned on the Jefferson Tuesday from a trip to the States. Mr. Gingrass reports that traffic to Alaska is so heavy that he could not secure passage to Wrangell until August 20. He reached home by going to Prince Rupert on a Grand Trunk boat, from that point to Ketchikan on the Tillamook and thence to Wrangell on the Jefferson.

Dr. D. A. Griffin arrived on the Princess Alice Tuesday morning. Dr. Griffin has recently been sojourning in Southern California, but says it is too hot for him in that State.

FIFTEEN SACKS OF SPUDS GO OVERBOARD
Salvage Machinery Is Quickly Put Into Operation and Precious Food Nuggets Are Recovered.

What might have been a most serious calamity occurred last week at the local wharf when the cargo of a steamer was being unloaded. Fifteen sacks of spuds were in the sling when one corner of the net broke loose and the entire fifteen sacks were dumped into the bay. Had this accident occurred in years gone by the steamship company would no doubt have stood the loss without making any effort to recover the spuds. But we are now living in an age when spuds are spuds, and even a rich steamship company shudders at the thought of facing an irate consignee with a claim for lost spuds. Accordingly the salvage machinery was quickly put into operation and in less than an hour the entire fifteen sacks had been fished up from the bottom of the bay. The sacks were opened and the spuds spread out on the wharf to dry. "Bobby Burns," a Wrangell citizen of many years residence, whose integrity ranks with his poetry, was intrusted with the high responsibility of guarding the precious food nuggets during the drying process.

PROPAGANDA FROM THE AIR
 Japanese Society Uses Planes to Scatter Leaflets Urging Improved Health Conditions.

The Japan Consumptive Prevention association, or the Nihon Yekaku Yobo-kai, carried out an aerial propaganda last Sunday, and as Tokyo people were out in force seeing the sights, the printed matter whirling down from the sky was a startling method to awaken them to their social duties.
 Thousands of folks out for a holiday in Hibiya park, sitting quietly on the benches admiring the many-hued azaleas and listening to the distant sound of the military band playing for the amusement of the Sunday crowds, suddenly saw something falling through the air, and watched the arrival of propaganda leaflets with open-mouthed astonishment.
 One read as follows: "Consumption sputa are fireless explosives," another, "Long nails are a den of the cursed disease." Still others read, "Where no sunlight enters the doctor enters," and "By watering lay the dust; by wind blow away the damp."—Far Eastern Bureau Bulletin.

DEPICTED NATURE AS HARSH
 English Philosopher's Theory Would Account for Devastating Wars and Pestilences.

The economic doctrine that the natural tendency of population is to increase faster than the means of subsistence was set forth in systematic form by an Englishman named Malthus. He crystallized the views of the ancient Greek philosophers, Plato and Aristotle, the English historian Hume, and the American politician Franklin, and presented them in systematic form with elaborate proofs derived from history.
 Malthus was born on February 14, 1766, near Dorking, in Surrey, England, where his father owned a small estate. He distinguished himself at Cambridge university, and became a Church of England clergyman in his native county. In 1798 he brought out his "Essay on the Principles of Population," and some years later he was appointed professor of political economy and modern history in the East India company's college at Haileybury. He died at Bath on December 29, 1834.

NEEDED.
 The teacher in a little rural Hoosier school had a great amount of trouble with the older boys fighting at recess time. She appealed to the county superintendent for aid in stopping it and he, being an advocate of supervised play, told her to play with the children at recess periods. She followed his suggestion for several recesses—with the result that the fighting was forgotten in the playing. Then came one recess at which she was busy coaching a backward pupil. The recess was about half over when a youngster about seven years old rushed into the room. "Can't you come out here and start something?" he asked.

ANSWER.
 A critic told at the Players' club about Edgar Lee Masters, author of the "Spoon River Anthology." "Masters and an English poet," he said, "were discussing their work."
 "My dear Edgar," the Englishman drawled, "your poetry doesn't lack fire and sincerity, but it's rough. It's so sketchy. Why do you never finish?"
 "Masters gave a loud, discordant laugh."
 "My dear Alf," he said, "why do you ever begin?"

THERE TO SUIT.
 "What I want to see is one big union," said the fat man.
 "You shall see that very thing," said the salesman. "What size do you wear?"—Buffalo Express.

JUST AN OBSERVATION.
 We can't understand why young folks want to go up in an airplane to get married. They can stay on earth and fall out quick enough.
SUPERABUNDANT TOPICS.
 "Are you a socialist?"
 "No use of being a socialist now. Plenty of other things to keep the conversation going."

THE HYDAS

An Awakening People

"The Hydas, An Awakening People" is the title of the High School annual of the Native town of Hydaguburg, a copy of which was received this week with the compliments of Marius Hansome, the government teacher.

The annual is a most interesting booklet which is illustrated with halftone and wood cuts, the engraving of the latter being done by the native pupils.

In one paragraph we read: "Totems are entirely foreign to Hydaguburg. They are considered curios of a bygone age." The younger generation instead of carving totems gratify their wood carving instincts by producing numerous wood cuts which are distinctive in appearance. At the bottom of a wood cut by Jones Yeltatsie, a seventh grade pupil, is the following note by the editor: "The father of this boy is conceded to be the oldest living totem carver among the Hydas. Some claim that the Hydas were the first among the Natives to carve totems."

One of the surprising things about the Hydaguburg annual is that it was printed by the pupils themselves and shows much painstaking effort on their part. Below are a few paragraphs taken from the booklet which justifies its title: "The Hydas, An Awakening People."

Hydaguburg has a population of 320. They are a peaceable people not one complaint having reached the justice court this year.

There are 25 gas boats, practically all cleared.

The Hydaguburg Natives are a church going people. The building is theirs. It contains thirteen memorial windows, all of which were donated by various families. Credit for the beautiful interior finishing belongs to Mr. Howe and the Native carpenters.

The Hydaguburg Trading Company shows steady growth. This company was organized in November, 1911. When the books were audited twelve months later $4,020 had been subscribed in stock. Now, June 30, 1920, the capital stock is $40,000; the merchandise inventories $20,000. The lumber sales since February 1 amount to $6,000; $3,369 worth of logs were purchased from Native loggers during the same period. The Hydaguburg trading company owns a store building worth in round numbers, $10,000, a mill valued at $9,500; a cannery building and dock at $6,000; a moving picture machine, a Ford truck and the equipment for electric lights. Practically every man, woman and child in town owns stock in the concern. We feel that Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hawkesworth can justly look with pride upon this growing enterprise which they launched nine years ago on some $450.

The "County" Fair.

[Communicated]

Alaska has no counties, but it has what corresponds to them, recording precincts. The county fair has always been a profitable undertaking. Can Wrangell have something similar? What would it be?

South Eastern Alaska has its gardens. Prizes could be offered for the best display garden vegetables—potatoes, etc.

It has its chicken ranches. Let Mr. and Mrs. Hen be put on exhibition. Let there be a display of home canned fish. The country is noted for its wild berries. Let there be displays of the canned fruits that are home grown. The schools could help in this; let manual training classes bring in their work. Ladies with fancy work could make a wonderful display.

Let there be prizes for the best native baskets made during the year. Let there be prizes for wood carving, moccasins, etc.

Where flowers can not be had photographs of gardens, flowers, etc. can be displayed.

In fact everything should be done to encourage home industry.

The rink no doubt could be secured for this purpose. Each afternoon could witness games, boat races, etc.

The celebration could last three days. The evenings could be given up to musical entertainments and the like.

Where would the money come from? If five hundred dollars can be raised for an independence day celebration, can not there be an equal sum raised for an affair that will yield much larger financial returns to the town. There could be a charge for the evening entertainments which would help to defray expenses.

The time for such an affair would be sometime in September, and now is the time, if we are to have one this year, to begin to make arrangements.

The seiners of this vicinity and the West Coast have been on a strike for the past ten days. They are holding out for last year's prices which are as follows: Humpies 5c, dogs 7c, Sockeyes 30c—cannery gear and boat. At noon today the outlook for an agreement between the seiners and the canneries was not very promising.

W. E. Parrot was in town yesterday from his ginseng farm on Sergeif island. He expressed himself as greatly pleased that Uncle Sam has decided to put Sergeif island on the map.

The U. S. Commissioner yesterday fined B. Frank $10 for drunkenness.

Francis Morin, M. E. Page and J. B. Stanton took passage on the Spokane Sunday for Petersburg.

H. Morris a well known traveling man of Juneau, is in Wrangell this week.

St. Philips Guild will meet with Mrs. S. C. Barrington next Wednesday afternoon.

Tom McTague, recently of Sulzer, has located in Wrangell.

For Rent.—A furnished house until September. Enquire Sentinel office.

For Sale—A well built 14½-ft round bottom boat in excellent condition. Inquire Sentinel office.

For Sale—A pair of Belgian hares. 2-yr-old imported buck, 6-months-old doe. Enquire Sentinel office.

CHICAGO, July 14. — The newly born named third party went into session today with the announced intention of selecting candidates whose initial efforts appear to be to get a platform acceptable to LaFollette, who, while attempting to dominate the new party says that he does not deem himself available as a candidate for the presidential nomination. He sent word to the convention that he does not want the nomination.

Father Allard, a Catholic missionary for many years in the North, arrived in Wrangell last Friday evening on the City of Seattle. He will leave for Prince Rupert on the Princess Alice tomorrow night but expects to return to Wrangell next month.

While in Atlin on his way out from the Interior, Father Allard had a narrow escape from death at the hands of Gus Brunich who drew a revolver with which he attempted to shoot Father Allard. A man standing by grappled him from carrying out his murderous intent.

It is said that Brunich's animosity extended back for ten years when Father Allard found it necessary to complain to the authorities of Brunich's objectionable acts with the Indians under Father Allard's care.

Brunich is an old timer in Atlin. He has been known as being very eccentric and his condition has gradually grown worse during the past ten years.

Miss Erma Grant was hostess to fifteen of her friends last Monday afternoon, the occasion being her tenth birthday. The party gathered in the parlor of the Wrangell Hotel where games were played and a general good time was had until four o'clock when the guests were served ice cream and cake in the dining room by Miss Margaret Grant and Miss Lillian Kelly. Pictures of the merry group were taken by Captain Thompson of sub-chaser 294. During the afternoon an impromptu program was given, there being an abundance of musical and elocutionary talent in the party.

The families of B. Y. Grant and Sam Cunningham, Mrs. Arnt Sorset and little daughter spent Tuesday and Wednesday on an outing trip at Big Bay.

Father Turnell of Douglas arrived in Wrangell last week and with Father Allard held services in the Catholic church last Sunday.

The moving pictures taken of the Shriners are being shown in New York this week. Richard Surratt, who took the pictures received a cable Tuesday from the Fox News Film Corporation that they were highly satisfactory.
